RAMP, RENAUD & HLAVENKA

PRESS RELEASE

ATTORNEY SPECIALIZING IN MENTAL HEALTH AND FAMILY
ISSUES TO SPEAK JULY 29

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE (Long Branch, NJ, June 29, 2010) – Ann Renaud, an East Brunswick attorney and mental health advocate who is passionate about protecting the rights of those with mental health issues, will speak at a special program sponsored by the Family Based Services Association of New Jersey on Thursday, July 29, from 7 – 9 p.m. Her talk at the association’s offices at 279 Broadway, Suite 400, Long Branch, NJ, 07740, is open to the public.

“We need to make changes in our court system to take a more compassionate approach in dealing with people who have mental health issues or need drug rehabilitation,” Ms. Renaud said. “I’ve worked in the judicial system as an advocate and as a former municipal court judge. I’ve seen the suffering that can be caused by a system that is not equipped to deal with people with these kinds of issues. It causes them unnecessary suffering and hurts us as a society.”

Ms. Renaud has called on Gov. Chris Christie to create mental health courts and to dedicate greater resources for research into mental illnesses and to bring insurance reimbursement for mental health services on par with other health services.

“If our court system continues to view people with mental illnesses and special needs only in terms of labels, it is going to continue this needless suffering,” Ms. Renaud said. “The system as it stands now is not designed to recognize their problems or provide compassionate, common-sense solutions.”

Ms. Renaud said the judicial system needs to be remade in a way that deals with mental health issues and drug dependency with compassion and understanding.

“Instead of viewing people as problems that need to be managed, we should all become their advocates and take on the challenge of unleashing the possibilities that exist within them,” she said. She said lawmakers and court officials have given us, at best, a system that is simply inadequate. It hurts the people who need special help as well the communities that will eventually have to deal with them after they’ve failed to receive that help.

“Despite decades of good intentions on the part of our policymakers and the court system, the justice system in New Jersey today is inadequate. And the price of that failure is being paid not just by those who need help and aren’t getting it, but by all of us,” she said in her blog on www.ramprenaud.com. “Failing to deal effectively with mental health issues only results in further suffering by the individual and harm to society.”

Ms. Renaud said fundamental changes are needed in the way our system metes justice for those with mental health issues, citing the words of Baltimore Judge Charlotte Cooksey: “Our jails have become de facto psychiatric hospitals. That must change.”

Renaud will talk about the rights of those with mental health and substance abuse issues at Family Based Services Association of New Jersey office in Long Branch. She will explore ways individuals caught in the justice system can advocate for themselves and utilize available public and private resources.

Renaud, who blogs regularly about the challenges faced by those with mental illness, developmental and intellectual disabilities and substance abuse issues on her website, will field questions from the audience.
